COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The public hearing at Rumford on the classification of the Androscoggin River went very much as expected. None of the municipalities or industries along the river objected to the C classification. The main concern of those present seemed to be the time element. Some of the speakers just requested adequate time to provide treatment facilities and the period of seven years was mentioned. The final decision of time and classification will be made by the next legislature but the recommendation of the Water Improvement Commission are usually given a lot of consideration.

The C classification would mean that the water would be acceptable for fish life and limited recreation. It would not be clean enough for swimming. A biologist from the State Fish and Game Department commented at the public hearing about a study made this summer of fish in the river. The study covered that part of the river from the Maine-New Hampshire line to the town of Jay. The study is now being printed and I believe copies of it will be available later. The condition of the river now is very poor but the outlook is very good as far as support for fish life.

The seven year allowance for abatement of pollution in the Androscoggin should be enough for the Town of Bethel. Perhaps I should qualify the last statement with the provision that federal and state approval is not delayed when the programs are ready.

The town's application to the Housing and Urban Development Department has been pending since February of this year. The application is for an interest free loan to finance a preliminary study of the sewer system of the town. The engineers can't start this study until the application is approved. The study will not take very long and probably the town had better move to the next phase of the work as soon as the study has been completed. In that way the work should be completed in the allotted time.

STATE HIGHWAY DEPT. STARTS NIGHT ROAD PATROL FOR 13th SEASON

The State Highway Commission's night patrol began its thirteenth season last week and keeping watch on the condition of about 2,000 miles of the state's most traveled highways, including 173 miles of Interstate highways.

The major purpose of the patrol is to alert plowing and sanding crews if needed. Patrolmen also carry enough sand in their trucks to cover short, icy sections of road in dangerous locations and are prepared to aid motorists in distress. Last winter, according to a tabulation made by the commission, the night patrol assisted 1,300 motorists who were stranded in rural areas. Of those assisted about 1,000 cars bore Maine license tags, 300 were registered out of state.

During their nightly tour of duty, patrols contact their division offices by radios at least once each hour, through the night, reporting weather and road conditions. This information is passed on by the division's offices to the department's headquarters office in Augusta every two hours. Every day at 6:00 a. m. and at 10:00 p. m. a statewide report is made available by the Augusta office to the Presque Isle, Ellsworth, Bangor, Portland and Rumford division offices.

All of this information, late reports on local highway conditions as well as the statewide report, is available to news services and the general public at the above listed offices any time of day or night.

Motorists may wish to make note of the telephone number of the Rumford highway office so they can take advantage of this road condition reporting service.

Rumford Division Office 30 Exchange Street—Telephone 264-3331 and 304-2231. Office open 24 hours a day seven days a week. Late state-wide reports available after 6 a. m. and 10 p. m. every day of the week. Reports available on roads that are patrolled in this division at any time, day or night.

SEWERAGE MIGHT BE PROBLEM AT SCHOOL SITE. DIRECTORS ARE INFORMED

At the regular meeting of the Directors of S. A. D. 44 held at Locke Mills Monday evening, it was revealed that the planned drainage field did not appear to be satisfactory to the Department of Health. The system as originally planned would cost $30,000, while a treatment plant would cost $60,000, with a 30% Federal subsidy. The architect was instructed to continue with present plans until plans are declared unacceptable and reasons given. It was suggested that a possible relocation of the drainage field be investigated.

WEEKLY HIGHLIGHTS FOR U. OF M., ORONO, NOV. 14-19

Approximately 300 business and professional firms have contacted the University of Maine Placement Bureau seeking to interview students for placement in jobs following graduation. The number is a record total, according to Placement Bureau Director Philip Brockway. Interviews with seniors will start November 29.

A total of 1,112 students at the University of Maine received $491,925 in National Defense Education Act loans during the fiscal year which ended July 1, 1966. The amount loaned was the highest since the NDEA Loan Program was instituted at the university in 1958. The average loan was listed as $442 for full-time students and $306 for part-time students.

The budget for the current fiscal year shows a considerable decrease in NDEA funds with the federal government allocating $280,620 and the university contributing $31,202.22. The difference is expected to be made up, however, through Economic Opportunity Grants and government guaranteed loans.

The University of Maine television network will originate a unique teaching-by-television series featuring folk guitar lessons which started Friday, Nov. 18. The 26-week course is the first attempt in Maine to actually teach the basic principals of playing an instrument by television. The course will be shown by WMED-TV, Orono; WMEM-TV, Presque Isle; and WMED-TV, Calais.

A one-week Institute on the Multiply-Handicapped Child will be conducted at the University of Maine Monday through Friday, March 27 to 31, 1967. The U. S. Office of Education has provided funds for the Institute and statewide representation of participants will be sought.

ANNUAL MEETING OF N. E. A. C. &amp; S. S. TO FEATURE WELL-KNOWN SPEAKERS

Four writers and educators of national prominence will address the 81st annual meeting of the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools when it gathers at the Statler-Hilton Hotel in Boston on Friday, Dec. 2.

More than 1,200 delegates and guests from the region's public and independent secondary schools and colleges are expected to be present.

David Mallory — director of studies for the National Association of Independent Schools and program director of the Friends Council on Education of Philadelphia — will speak at the first general session at 11:15 a. m.

At luncheon, Robert J. Manning, former journalist and Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs and now editor of "The Atlantic," will be the guest speaker.

Dr. Dana L. Farnsworth, director of student health services at Harvard and an international authority on psychiatry and mental health, will address the conference after its annual business meeting in the late afternoon.

Max Lerner — author, editor, nationally syndicated columnist and Professor of American Civilization and World Politics at Brandeis University — will speak at the Association's annual banquet that evening.

Membership in the NEAC&SS is limited to those 852 educational institutions in the six New England states which have met the organization's academic, physical and financial standards. While accreditation of new schools and colleges is one of its primary responsibilities, the Association also re-evaluates its member institutions every six years. At the annual meeting its three Commissions—one each for public secondary schools, independent secondary schools, and higher education—recommend to the delegates those institutions which it considers qualified for new or continued membership.

Association President is Dr. Robert E. L. Strider, president of Colby College, Waterville. Following the annual meeting he will be succeeded as president by Francis O. Grubbs, headmaster of the Loomis School, Windsor, Conn. Dana M. Cotton, of the Harvard Graduate School of Education, is the organization's secretary-treasurer.

The three commissions and the executive committee will meet on Thursday, Dec. 1, and on Saturday a number of related educational organizations will hold their annual meetings in the Boston area.
